DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 12/18/2008 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1, 10 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The step of using milk surge data to subsequently effect one or more of a subsequent therapeutic, diagnostic or modified milk expression technique of the mother is not present in the specification as originally filed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 3767

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2, 6, 7, and 9-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Alekseev et al (Compression stimuli increase the efficacy of breast pump function. European Journal of Obstetrics & Gynecology).

Alekseev et al disclose on page 133 a system for detecting a milk surge and using that data for modified milk expression techniques for a mother having a breast pump (1), a breast shield (2), a collecting container (6), and a unit (volume, see page 133 column 1, lines 8-10) by which milk surge is detected over time.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3, 4, 5, 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Alekseev et al as modified by Jaquith (US 4,030,356).

Alekseev et al disclose the claimed invention except for the measuring means being an electromechanical balance with a bearing surface. Jaquith teaches in column 2, lines 40-52 that it is known to use an electromechanical balance as a measuring means. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the system of Alekseev et al with an electromechanical balance as taught by Jaquith since such a modification would provide the system with a more efficient, accurate and automated way of measuring the weight of milk expressed.
